

Bipolarlab's members and associates are active in publishing their research in peer-reviewed journals. The process of publishing one's work may be time consuming and often painful but it is the best way to ensure a high quality standard of work.

Our services are based on their entirety on data-driven research. Our research has also been presented at many national (UK) and international conferences and has received funding from world famous, highly respected Research councils and other funding bodies.

Here you can also find out about existing research studies that continue through this lab and you can participate online .
